Kresswell Interiors had worked with the homeowners before and understood their preference for Scandinavian influences that integrate modern features with warm woods and texture. “A lot of attention was spent on the millwork,” notes interior designer Diana Tidswell of Kresswell Interiors. The owner’s suite hosts a custom built-in headboard, bed frame, and night stands in rift-cut white oak that complement the fir wood slat details that permeate the home with texture and additional light.

Hosting a unique and compelling ambience, the home reveals an understated sophistication that is warmed by its wood features. “It’s about how it all works with natural light and how that light plays on the finishes with perfect unity,” says Sydney.

“The clients are in love with their new home,” she admits. “They were very involved and that gave us something to build on. Everything about Rescom’s projects is special and unique—the design, the craftsmanship and especially our clientele.”

Large, south-facing windows embrace views and light that carries throughout the home. A Dekton slab hearth and stove-pipe accentuates wall cut outs within a wash of oak hardwoods.

Selenium Interiors

Enhancing the beauty and function of homes in Edmonton, Selenium Interiors provides the calibre of custom cabinetry that both dazzles and defines excellence for every room in your home.

This high-contrast and appealing renovation showcases the level and extent of their talents through premium finishes and stylish features. “Since 1998, we have brought our hearts and hands to the craft of fine woodworking and work together to bring our clients cabinetry and millwork that endures,” shares Selene Yuen, who together with husband John have assembled a team of local artisans and innovators, merging rigorous European standards with continuous technical improvements.

Featuring a design by Kyle and Co., Selenium further worked in conjunction with GH Construction to include custom cabinetry and millwork that would satisfy the high standards, desires, and lifestyle function of the client. The home was gutted and then rebuilt with the opportunity to start fresh. “What they wanted was stylish luxury with lots of customized details and finishings and our cabinetry and millwork was developed to coordinate with the balance of the decor in the home,” says Selene.

An eye-catching contrast of colour defines the kitchen with a blend of opaque white and charcoal lacquered cabinets in a Shaker style. Highly functional, a pullout breakfast nook conceals the toaster and coffee maker for a clutter-free décor amidst specialized storage features throughout. The pantry hosts black metal framed cabinets with reeded glass inserts and dark grey interiors with customized drawers keeping everything simple and accessible.

The library features frame and panel cabinet doors, backlit shelving, and sliding oak ladder with functional flair. “We can always accommodate given site conditions and the unpredictable nature of renovations,” adds Selene.

“John and I were in Italy recently and we saw a fair amount of charcoal and black cabinets in their custom homes. These trends usually land here in three years or so, which starkly contrast with the continuing trend of white millwork. There is also a heightened interest in functionality with what’s going on inside as important as the exterior.”

Creating luxury gourmet kitchens, vanities, wine room and media room cabinetry, and architectural millwork, Selenium Interiors incomparable team delivers the high style and commensurate quality that satisfies both inside and out.
